The 1976 Monte Carlo.

When a car makes you feel good about its looks, that's style. When it makes you feel good about yourself, that's character.

From the point of view of style, there can be little question in your mind.

Monte Carlo has it.

It is genuine. Honest. Original.

A car with crisp, sculptured lines the likes of which you will see on no other car.

A trim, personal-size gem of a car at a Chevrolet price.

And given that, we dare say it won't surprise you to hear that Monte Carlo is, far and away, the most popular car in its specialty class. And has been each year since its introduction.

But we implied that Monte Carlo has more than style. That it can make you feel good about yourself for buying it. That it has, in a word, character.

It does indeed. One facet of it shows up as soon as you begin to drive. It's the grace with which Monte Carlo moves. In the city or on the highway.

It's almost as though the car knows the roads you're traveling.

The source of this trait is some rather remarkable engineering.

Another aspect is the interior environment. It is quiet, comfortable. Much like the interior of a private club.

And, with time, other aspects will surface. Slowly. Inexorably. Until one day, you'll be able to stand back from the car, take it all in, and nod your head, "Yes."

You get a good feeling inside.

Monte Carlo interiors are as elegant as Monte Carlo exteriors. Close inspection reveals a tastefulness of design and execution we think you'll appreciate.

The standard interior features

Available all-vinyl interior.

a molded full foam bench seat, deep cut-pile carpeting and color-keyed instrument panel and steering wheel. Upholstery comes in an appealing mix of tailored knit cloth material or available all-vinyl (shown at left).

Elegant, yes. But also practical, in that the contoured bucket seats swivel up to 90 degrees for ease of entry and exit.

means responsive ignition performance; Catalytic Converter—takes over most of the emissions control so engines can be tuned for smooth, responsive, efficient performance; Carburetor Outside Air Induction—impressive engine performance because cooler, denser air is fed into the carburetor from outside the car; Early Fuel
